About me

Detail-oriented tech professional with a solid foundation in Software Engineering from 42 Barcelona and a background as a certified Mountain Guide.

Fully adapted to working and programming in international environments, I combine advanced technical skills—such as C programming, Linux environments, and Git—with strong, battle-tested soft skills.

My experience leading groups in high-pressure natural environments has honed my ability to solve problems under pressure, manage risks, and communicate seamlessly in English. I am eager to leverage this unique combination of logical thinking, adaptability, and team leadership within a dynamic global tech environment.
